

“Alien for a Day”

by J.A. Fludd, copyright 2017

Opening Narration:

“The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence,” or so it’s said. But did you ever stop to wonder how it would be on someone else’s planet? Mr. Norman Duffy will soon have the chance to see how the other species lives, through the kind of exchange that could only be made...in the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration:

“The grass is always greener”—but “you don't know what you've got 'til it's gone.” For all the quiet—or unquiet—desperation that the world gives us, the lives we lead are, after all, our own, and no one else can lead them. Mr. Norman Duffy has just considered the question from both sides, having taken a step out of humanity to learn that being human was not so bad a thing as he thought. He’s returned a wiser man from his visit to...the Twilight Zone.
