Opening narration:

What looks like a prison with its bars and cages, attempting to contain those whom society has deemed unfit, is anything but. Miss Millicent Staybach enters the dwelling week after week, providing comfort and solace to the condemned of death row. Tonight though, she'll enter the doors and find her way past the rows of desperation. She may never pass this way again, as Miss Millicent Staybach is about to enter the Twilight Zone.

Closing narration:

Serving time in cages through no fault of their own, they bark and howl as the dogs they are. There are too many and not enough room on Earth to house them all. Don't tell that to Miss Millicent Staybach, who managed to cross the Rainbow Bridge with every dog in need of a home given to every child who was ever taken way too soon.
