

“The Cryogenic Salesman”
by Brian Skalak, copyright 2017

Opening narration:

An unusual introduction to our protagonist, Heath Gibbons, a sad shell of a man who's main disability is the belief in himself. Today, however, Heath will hit the jackpot of an interdimensional slot machine where, by some farfetched chance of fate, his future will be forever changed by a simple ringing of the only working doorbell... in the Twilight Zone.

Closing narration:

A cold reminder to us all that it's not always about the life we're living but how we live it. For one man took the chance at an alternative to flying through the cosmos on this rock we call Earth to test the waters of an unknown future only to realize that grass isn't always greener... in the Twilight Zone.