Opening Narration:

Two friends decide to take a scenic drive to the other side of the Hudson River, to enjoy a sunny autumn day in New York. Little do they know, passing through the toll booth, that a strange fog up ahead awaits them. Having paid the fare, they now will find it has gained them entry into the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration:

What our daytrippers Carolyn and Jim never bargained for, after finding that unusual antique map, was the layout of the road signs contained within. So the next time you see an old photograph of Babe Ruth hitting a home run, or the Beatles performing on the Ed Sullivan show for the first time, look a bit more closely at the audience. You might see a very familiar couple who may seem out of place holding on tightly to the kind of map that is only drawn up in the Twilight Zone.
