

“Last Respects”

© 2020 by Ivy M. Miller

Opening Narration:

Parental discretion advised: What you see before you is the unveiling of a graveyard; the desecration and destruction of what were once memorials to alleged gods of war and medal-studded chevaliers of honor. In a moment, a few of these statued heroes will come back to life and face their present-day challengers. Slabs of marble will become flesh and history will have an autopsy. The moment of truth has arrived and it's high time in The Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration:

There is an old proverb that says conscience is the voice of the soul. And whether that soul is embedded in a block of stone for centuries or in a human heart, it has the right to be heard. Apology or warning to be taken from any monument standing in The Twilight Zone.