

“Silence Lay Steadily”

© 2020 by Jerome Archuleta
archuleta.jerome@gmail.com

Opening Narration:

Presenting Mr. Steven Crain: A pragmatic author with a penchant for the paranormal, whose particular body of work stems from a childhood summer tenured on the grounds of Hill House. Steven is one of five sibling survivors of an occurrence that took place that fateful summer. A lasting nightmare that has robbed them of every chance at any semblance of a ‘normal’ life. A nightmare that unbeknownst to the Crain Family, has just begun anew...

Closing Narration:

As Steven Crain closes the door on the haunting he and his siblings endured in childhood, he recalls the words printed in his first novel and laughs. While “Silence lay steadily against the wood and stone of Hill House,” he's come to realize that inside the house, among the decaying corridors and lifeless halls... there also exists a certain warmth. A bittersweet catharsis he must carry for the rest of his life ... and after.