

“Twenty-20”

© 2020 by Reuben Nelson

Opening Narration:

It's a new year, new season. The building walls have a fresh coat of paint, roller coaster wheels have oil applied to them. Gardens have been planted, posters show a sign of events ready to unfold for months of thrills, chills and laughter of various forms of entertainment. However there is one problem; the gates to this particular amusement park and others just like it will not open. The gates will remain shuttered this year. People are afraid to go out and are ordered to stay home. The cause? A Pandemic has swept the Globe.

Closing Narration:

The year following the Pandaemic, the amusement park reopened. Thrills, chills and laughter have returned. But this time, as people wait in line or go about their business, they don't stand so close to one another. All because of COVID-19; a virus not only contained toThe Twilight Zone.