

“Fly By Night”

© 2021 by Ronald Adams

Opening Narration

Childhood comes just once. But to these play pals, who are gathering odds and ends and items deemed useless in the minds of adults, once can last a lifetime.

They’ve created new rules to the old game: HIDE AND SEEK.

Don’t count to ten and say “Here I come.” Rather count down from ten and say “Blast Off,” as they are building a Rocket Ship to fly to the Sun, with one slight detour—a predawn refueling in ... THE TWILIGHT ZONE.

Closing Narration

Babysitters, if you’re looking for the children, they’ve left. Wear dark sunglasses or better yet a welder’s mask, and maybe you’ll catch a glimpse of them on their journey.

For this vessel was conceptualized by make-believe and built with child-like faith.

Destination, the Sun. And they will arrive by flying at night.

Impossible? Not to youngsters whose boundaries are that of imagination. House rules of ... THE TWILIGHT ZONE.