Opening Narration

Every reader wants to open a book to a story so interesting that not only can you not put it down, you want it to go on and on. Characters and storylines so enthralling, you can just imagine being in their lives, even being in their shoes. But for one Laurie Simon, who wants to live in her favorite book just for a day, she may wish she never turned that first page. A book that comes from a shop just around the corner...in the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

“If wishing could make it so” might be the lyric to a song, but it also describes what can happen when you get what you wish for. Something Laurie Scott found out the hard way, a lesson only found in the pages of...the Twilight Zone.
