Opening Narration

By way of introduction, this is Mrs. Camille Taylor.

A woman with a rare talent.

The ability to paint the future of those around her.

The uncanny and reluctant knack of capturing life and death in inches of canvas and paint.

But she will discover as we will soon see, that every stroke of a paintbrush has a weight and cost beyond any price any collector may offer.

A fresh portrait only to be found, in The Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

Artist: Mrs. Camille Taylor.

Primarily worked in acrylic and whatever bleeds from the human soul.

Who discovered that talent very often comes with a commission fee and that in painting others, the artist is locking away a tiny chip of themselves behind paint and primer.

Some people sell their souls, artists give it away for free.

Another portrait on loan, from the galleries of the Twilight Zone.
