

“The Orange Man”

© 2021 by Michael Pate

Opening Narration

Picture of a man. An Orange man. A man born into a life of privilege. Never knowing want. Never knowing restraint or compassion. His life a street of green lights. His every desire met without resistance. A demented ego/ID that delights in the failure of others. Now, some subversive, twist of fate has put him in the highest position of power in America. What happens next could only exist.....in the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

As insidious as he crept through the keyhole of our minds, The Orange Man slipped out the way he came in. A figment of our fears showing us how superstition, prejudice, and ignorance can divide a society down the middle. A harrowing reminder of how easily humanity can be led astray. Look to one another with open minds and hearts on the journey forward. Look out for one another. For there will always be an Orange Man somewhere, waiting.....in the Twilight Zone.