

“An Executive Decision”

Opening Narration

Swimming pool, Jamestown, New York. The annual Acme Furniture Convention. Top executives, board of directors, and managers mingle as an escape from the corporate office grind to attend seminars, sales presentations, and the eventual cocktail hour.

Enter Mia Madalaine: A single, three-time divorced yet self-made millionaire who has tirelessly worked her way from mere assistant to CEO of marketing after devoting 30-plus years to the job. Her predigest awards, deep admiration and triple-digital salary are no match to the burnout and resentment of three decades of having no life outside her corner office.

But soon, the man in the grey suit emerging from the bottom of the pool is about to offer her a position she cannot refuse.

Closing Narration

Swimming pool. Doubletree Hotel. The drowned bodies of the executives of the Acme Furniture Company have all resigned and found that retirement is a lot more fulfilling in the Twilight Zone.
