

“Glitch”

© 2023 by Nick Chiosa

Opening Narration

What you think you are about to witness is not a work of fiction. Rather, these are real events unoccurring in real time.

So what happens when things you were certain took place, turn out to be unassured figments of the imagination? The unraveling of reality takes place one glitch at a time in...the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

“I’ll believe it when I see it” is an expression that is no longer valid. For history’s now being rewritten by the whispers of some unseen force bent on altering the record of the past. By what measure does this indiscriminate hand undo the fabric of our embedded memories- memories no longer to be trusted?

Furthermore, is it possible that these so called ‘glitches’ might one day revert back to their original state? There are still many unanswered questions, but one thing is for certain; Hindsight isn’t always twenty-twenty in...the Twilight Zone.