Opening Narration

Your eyes didn't deceive you. What you just saw was Anthony Stillwind, age 45, dying. Mr. Stillwind has the mysterious ability to control time itself. More precisely, every time he dies, he goes back 20 years to live life anew. What Mr. Stillwind will soon find out is that this time he's gone back 20 years into the very center of...the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration:

Your ears didn't deceive you. What you just heard was the silent scream inside Anthony Stillwind's head. Most pertinent to Mr. Stillwind though are the doctors who didn't hear it. For these medical professionals are looking for a modern miracle – to save 'The Most Important Man in the World' from the brink of death. And they'll be damned if they let him die on their watch! Until then, Anthony Stillwind, age 36, will be a permanent resident in the comatose ward of...the Twilight Zone.
