Opening Narration

What you're witnessing is the wild imagination of, one Herbert Weston, part-time History Scholar but full-time Antiques Connoisseur. Mr. Weston, with his wide-eyed wonder, has stumbled across the Blue Scorpion; not in its natural form, but this time in the form of a gun. This precious pistol is about to push Mr. Weston into the dusty back corners of...The Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

They say, “Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.” But not with the Blue Scorpion. For the Blue Scorpion is indeed a legendary weapon, as old as time itself, no matter *what* form it takes: Gun...knife...or rock. So, if you come across said Scorpion, set inside pearly whites, you best turn around and run! Or...at least turn off the lights...in The Twilight Zone.
