Opening Narration

Meet Clarence Norman, a married man in a typical American suburb, father of two children, a dog, and the material things associated with a middle-class life. A man standing impatiently in line to buy a ticket to happiness. Mr. Norman, a regular buyer of lotto tickets, penny stocks, swamp land or any scheme promising sudden wealth. A man always looking to beat the odds but never able to.

Mr. Norman's life is about to change with a reply to a single email, a message found on the servers of the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

"Be careful what you wish for" is a familiar saying that Clarence Norman sadly forgot. A one-click wish granted for an exchange of souls. Mr. Norman, a digital soul in cloud residence with unlimited access to riches. He now spends his days phishing for another gullible soul in a digital realm located in the Twilight Zone.
