

“The Sun in the Stream”
© 2023 by James Hughes

Opening Narration

Meet Tony Martin, a man who dreams of the life and love he had long ago. He wears his loneliness and regret like an old outdated suit. Every night he turns the pages of an old photo album, a collection of images faded by time that have become his only reason for living. Tonite, one of those photos will be his admission ticket for entry into the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

Traveling back and forth from what once was and what is now has given back that day of love and happiness his heart longed for. In an empty room, a photo of a young couple holding hands burns in the fireplace. Meanwhile for Mr. Martin and his long-lost wife, every day will be that one day from years ago when his heart was full. Tonite's tale was brought to you from a romantic corner of the Twilight Zone.