

“Demons May Follow”

copyright © 2024 by Loren Thomas Palmer

Opening Narration

Mortimer Lang, a recovering conman, smiles as he drives down a lonesome highway. He has loaded what remains of his earthly possessions into his grandfather’s ancient jalopy and hit the road in search of a new life in some distant and unfamiliar place. A place where he wouldn’t need to constantly look over his shoulder. This time would be different. This time he would be better. Suddenly, headlights appear in the rearview mirror.

Closing Narration

What you have just witnessed is a man trying to run from his past. And failing miserably. Mortimer Lang missed every exit to redemption on his journey to a new life. He ignored all of the signs. He thought he could burn enough bridges to stop the demons. But what we have learned is that one demon will always follow. And now he is being chased... by himself, somewhere... in The Twilight Zone.