

“Election”

copyright © 2024 by Allison Rinehart

Opening Narration

You're looking at John Hayward, leading candidate for senior class president: a 17-year-old for whom mudslinging, malice, and aggression are merely pawns to be played on the chessboard of victory. But as he prepares a debate speech, he's about to find that the tactic he's been missing might be a dose of potent honesty. On his next campaign stop...The Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

Farewell to John Hayward, who lost his election by way of an otherworldly microphone that forced him to speak only the complete and utter truth: that he sees his classmates as lowlifes and miscreants, and this school as dead weight to be cast off. John, who found that the one thing you can't bully out of another student is their respect. Let this be a lesson on staying to one side of that barrier between truth and deceit, curriculum provided courtesy of...The Twilight Zone.