Opening Narration

The shaky hand holding the strange alien device belongs to one Mr. Harry Miller. As of late Mr. Miller has been carrying around the regrets of his life like a suitcase full of lead bricks. Usually at this time of the year, people are turning their clocks back an hour. A turn of the dial will send our soon to be traveler much further back in time and right into the heart of the Twilight Zone!

Closing Narration

The lesson Mr. Miller learned was that if we travel back in time to change the choices we made, then the lesson hasn't been taught. Whether it be a broken relationship or a broken bone, if we never learn why we made the mistakes we did, then we will only repeat those mistakes again and again. This is a truth held both in and out of the Twilight Zone.
