

“Tiny Demons”

copyright © 2024 by Mary Brzustowicz

Opening Narration

As Ray Leone strings another hand-sized ghost on his tree he sighs, knowing that bigger is better for this year’s Halloween decorations. There are five house-high skeletons and seven sets of massive zombie hands on his street.

But in the love of fear of the big, people often forget that the harshest demons are tiny – at least they start that way – The shadow of a doubt. The glimmer of envy.

When Ray Leone made his front yard a scary tableau for trick or treaters little did he know that he would be welcoming demons from the Twilight Zone.

Closing Narration

And so, while Ray Leone finds himself stuck in the Halloween tableau of his own making, he may be pleased to find that he is the envy of his neighbors in the Twilight Zone.